Getting Stronger for TIRES every day

When public demand swings toward one tire strongly to the tune of millions, and increases steadily for five years, you can put all confidence in the character of that tire. In 1911 Firestone Tire sales were $7,462,-581.17. In 1915 they were $25,187,884.33. This is an increase of 257%. Up to June 1, 1916, Firestone Tire sales show an increase of 38% over 1915. Such growth is a true indication of the Pulse of the Public. No demand could attain such splendid proportions in so short a time unless the tires themselves had given the Most Miles per Dollar.
